

Learning A-Z Announced as Finalist for EdTech Awards 2022 for Providing Trendsetting Social-Emotional Learning Solution

Company and platform recognized among edtech’s best and brightest innovators, leaders, and trendsetters

Tucson, AZ. – April 19, 2022 – Learning A-Z,[®] a Cambium Learning Group company, today announced their nomination as a finalist for The EdTech Awards 2022. The US-based awards program is the world’s largest recognition program for education technology, highlighting the biggest names in edtech. Used in classrooms worldwide, Learning A-Z’s award-winning literacy solution, Raz-Plus[®], was recognized as an “EdTech Trendsetter” category finalist for delivering a new, comprehensive social-emotional learning resource created to address important social and racial justice conversations over the past year.

This resource, called Meaningful Conversations, is included in Raz-Plus and enables teachers to facilitate classroom discussions on difficult topics that encourage students to celebrate one another’s differences and build understanding and respect.

“Students have seen and gone through so much over the last two years, and teachers are very much at the forefront of the questions students are asking or not asking but internalizing,” said Lisa O’Masta, president of Learning A-Z. “This recognition by EdTech Digest is confirmation that we’re making strides towards empowering the world’s teachers to do their best work and helping all students feel seen, heard, and understood.”

The EdTech Awards recognizes tools for outstanding contributions in transforming education through technology to enrich the lives of learners everywhere. Featuring edtech’s best and brightest, the annual program shines a spotlight on cool tools, inspiring leaders and innovative trendsetters across the K-12, higher education and skills and workforce sectors.

This year’s finalists and winners were narrowed and judged based on various criteria, including pedagogical workability, efficacy and results, support, clarity, value and potential.
